

Supriya Mordecai

Director of Essential Needs

Supriya joined Interfaith Works in 2021 and spent nearly two years as a Case Manager for the Interfaith Works Drop-In Center and Shelters at Progress Place (formerly known as the Empowerment Center). Supriya assisted with Case Management at other IW locations before becoming the Program Director at Progress Place in January 2023. Supriya believes that every person has their own unique experiences and advocates that all people must have a strong support system to overcome societal barriers. She deeply feels we must consider the intersectionality of various experiences that can marginalize people through gender, race, class, sexual orientation, and physical ability when working alongside our clients. Supriya holds a Master of Science in Psychology from Hampton University and has a keen interest and passion for understanding human behavior. Supriya values learning about history and social issues. In her free time, she enjoys trying new things like food, activities, and traveling to a new city.
